PRETTY MODELS FOR AFTERNOON WEAR

BY

tiful with the vest of the coat and the panel of the skirt of plain silk. Slanting would make up beautifully in this way, too, and according to the latest news from across the sea, slanting is one of the smartest of all things for mid-summer wear.

THE dealers have thrust the coming season upon us and, are already reexploding new and, it must be confessed, interesting hats. Shapes are of moderate size, neither large nor small, for the most part, and a great many are long and narrow, suggestive of the boat idea. Crowns, for the most part, are round although those of the Tam variety are seen and so much variety of detail is seen that it is hardly possible to lay down any rule. The prettiest features of the display are seen in the combinations of materials and of colors. Black with white is a favorite but there is a great deal of a real rich old gold color shown that is attractive and that will be welcome when the autumn really arrives. A great many hats show crowns of plush or velvet with brims of straw and black crowns with white brims and simple trimming of wings makes a smart effect. Plush is used in combination with moiré, too, and with satin, and some of the hats are made entirely of ribbed silk. It is evident that we are to have a great many silk hats and hats of silk combined with velvet and with plush and the trimmings are to be exceedingly simple and by no means as elaborate as those of the summer.

THE models of velvet and straw will doubtless fill an intermediate place and will be somewhat in demand, but the hats serve the purpose of indicating new styles rather than of immediate use. The feminine mind is always alert for what is coming in the matter of dress and items of this sort possess a certain interest whatever the season. One of the prettiest hats shown is of a general belt shape but with a brim that undulates in a rather unusual and attractive way and this brim is all of white chip while the crown is black plush and the trimming is small white mercury wings.

BLACK and white combinations are the latest cry in Paris and they are always pretty for warm weather. We started the summer with very brilliant, really aggressive, coloring and, while these colors are often picturesque, they are certainly not cool in effect and the black and white may fairly be taken as a protest against their overdoing. At the recent races the combination was conspicuous. While often each costume will show some tiny bit of color, the whole effect is cool and pretty. Fluffy little necks of lace and tulle skirt to sit out in the back in modish fashion are much seen. They are very charming and very becoming. They make the prettiest frames for the face and the cool summer has made it possible to wear them almost continuously. New ones combine black and white tulle and often there is just one beautiful artificial rose pinned to the ruch at the left of the front or there are little flowers half hidden in its folds.

SOME extremely handsome dresses are made of white lace or net over black chamoisee and some of the sashes are so voluminous that they cover nearly half the skirt, practically forming a tunic and train. The sash that is pushed well down over the hips after the manner of the Eastern dancing girl is seen and is becoming to many figures. As a contrast, however, we are seeing tulle sashes with big looped bows at the back and the ends finished with tassels. It might fairly be said that fashions are so generous and allow so much license to the individual that there is no excuse for unbecoming dress. While it is true that it is easy to overdo and to exaggerate in following the fashionable lines, it is the part of the individual to avoid such errors and only by avoiding them can real distinction be found. J. S. Mode offers the opportunity and it rests with the individual whether it is to be used to advantage or trampled into the absurd. This is the season when old Gotham is full of strangers and some really weird efforts at fashion are to be met upon the streets. What a pity the girls will not remember to look at one another and be guided by what they see. Close, narrow skirts of linen and duck are hopelessly ugly after they have been met in.

THEY outline the figure in a way that is vulgar and they form lines and folds that are appalling in their ugliness. Since each one of us sees the other in that plight, how is it that in so many instances the lesson has no meaning. When ugliness and vulgarity are combined, there surely is no excuse left and these narrow skirts heavier washable materials present of the pictures that were they not so common, would indeed excite surprise.

HAPPILY plaited tunics are coming into vogue and are gaining favor. As a matter of course, they suit only the thin materials but they veil the outlines and they give relief. Some of them are very pretty, and the fashion is apparently meeting with success. Paris has grown weary of the hopelessly narrow and extreme of the sort and is wearing a great many flannel skirts. The plaited tunic may be said to be an opening wedge for similar fashions on this side of the sea. Some of the flounces, it is reported, are wired at the lower edge to give a hoop effect but we will hope that, in turning our backs upon an extreme, we will not be called upon to accept another as bad in its way. As a matter of fact, we are crying out for real beauty. While we find it in the best gowns, the pictures made by the women who walk the streets and exploit themselves in public places are many of them distressing in the extreme.

MENTION has been made in previous letters to the tendency of the new skirts to fullness about the hips while they are drawn in somewhat about the feet. New features of this kind are constantly being shown and some of the newest skirts are made of a single piece yet so cleverly handled that they provide really comfortable as well as graceful folds while they are narrow about the ankles. We need not look for actual broadness with the coming of autumn but for the narrow skirt handled in becoming and interesting ways. A model seen today, for example, shows only one seam at the center front where the edges of the cloth meet. It is laid in little plaits at the waist line in the back to give the effect of a wide box plait with smaller wide plaits beyond and it is draped a little at the front. Below the drapery, it is slightly cutaway. There is ample room to sit and even room for the knees in walking. It is doubtful if the skirt at the lower edge measures much over a yard and ten inches.

A most fascinating evening gown which passed through the city this week on its way to a seashore resort, is made of broché crepe in a delicious shade of watermelon pink combined with chiffon and cream shadow lace. The skirt is marvelously draped with a pointed train. It is full over the hips and it suggests the outline of the figure without revealing it in an aggressive way. The material falls carelessly about the wearer and its draperies "half conceal and half reveal". The bodice is of the simple kimono sort that is such a pronounced favorite, made of two pieces of shadow lace crossed in surplice style at the front and back. This lace is edged with folds of the chiffon and over the joinings are set brilliant in close succession. The little low chemisette is of white chiffon. The whole gown is eminently graceful, eminently charming, without any of the half dressed suggestion that is so offensive in many of the cheaper imitations.

COTTON is so wonderfully beautiful this season that it is made up into some of the handsomest gowns. The one illustrated is buff in color, shows a broché effect and is trimmed with plain white piques. The buttons are little round ones in Irish crocheted. The peplum gives the suggestion of a coat that renders the gown peculiarly adapted to the street while it is perfectly correct within doors and, consequently, serves a double purpose. Cotton fabrics are among the most fashionable of the summer and the gown just as it is a most attractive one, but there are numberless materials that can be treated in the same way. Crêpe de chine and chamoisee satin suggest themselves at once; for the simpler effect, the pretty flowered voile combined with plain, the pongees that are very lovely this year and foulards are perfectly suited to such treatment. White foulard in a design similar to this one in black or blue, combined with plain white satin, would make a beautiful effect. One of the natural colored pongees would begeth with the trimming portions of the same material embroidered in tiny flowers in the natural colored silks.

THE gown illustrated made in semi-princess style, closed at the front, is one of the most attractive as well as one of the most useful possible. It can be worn upon the street and within doors with equal propriety. It is ideal for the bridge luncheon, it makes a good costume for the afternoon visits and it is altogether satisfactory. The trimming portion on the blouse and the panel on the skirt afford opportunity for the use of fancy material and the little separate chemisette can be made just as illustrated or without the collar. If liked, the sleeves can be made shorter too with rolled over cuffs, but the long sleeves are fashionable and women who find them bearable during the warm weather will do well to choose the full length. Frills over the hands are dainty and attractive. Foulard would be pretty made in this way with trimming of plain material and crêpe de chine is always delightful to wear in warm weather.

THE entire dress, or one-piece frock, is a favorite of the summer and here is one of the prettiest models that has appeared. It combines the favorite square yoke blouse with a three-piece skirt and this skirt can be draped at one side or at both sides or can be plain. In any case, the dress closes at the front so that buttons can be used effectively as trimming. The sleeves are made in one piece each but they are fitted by means of little darts at the inner elbow that render them especially desirable. The frock in the picture is made of white chamoisee satin with Oriental-looking silk as trimming but, made with the draped front or fronts, the dress is suited to all the fashionable silks, voiles and the like; made with the plain fronts, it becomes available for many simpler fabrics and for morning wear. The change in the collar makes a very effective change in the bodice yet the difference is accomplished by very simple means and it is easy to make the dress with one as the other. The satin frock is a most attractive one but the same color effect can be obtained by using voiles trimmed with silk.

SUCH lovely effects as we now have in cotton this season allow of making the prettiest possible gowns out of simple stuffs. This one combines the favorite two-piece skirt with a blouse rendered a little distinctive by the shaped closing and it is made of one of the Jacquard cottons that are as beautiful in color and design as the fashionable silks. The ingenious woman will be quick to see that the model can be copied in almost any fabric, however; crêpe de chine or chamoisee satin if something handsome is wanted, linen to make an exceedingly attractive gown of the practical sort and the still simpler gingham, chambray and the like if a morning dress is wanted. The blouse is tucked at the front to give pretty fullness. The sleeves are perfectly plain at the shoulder edges and can be made in three-quarter or full length if preferred. The frock illustrated made of the pretty cotton stuff is daintily attractive for summer afternoons. Chamoisee satin with collar and cuffs either of contrasting color or of lace would make an exceedingly handsome effect and all sorts of pretty color contrasts will suggest themselves.

BORDERED fabrics are more beautiful and more varied than these models, which are especially designed for such fabrics, are sure to be much in demand. In the illustration, the gown is made of ratine with a border in an open weave and bands of color. The effect is exceedingly attractive but the labor of making is very slight since these materials form their own trimming. Flouncing could be used for these models with equal success or, indeed, any bordered material. Plain material can be used too with trimming arranged in any way that may be liked.

THE striped suitings are very charming this summer and they have the great advantage of trimming themselves. Here is a costume made from one of the new ratines with the collar and bands showing bits of the bright color that is still noticeable. The coat has the Empire effect that is found in the smartest models and the skirt is made in just three pieces, the front edges being lapped onto a novel panel. This panel meets the vest of the coat to give the long lines that are so essentially becoming. Altogether the suit is one of the prettiest and most practical that could be devised. It would be just as attractive, however, made of one of the fashionable silk suitings and, if linen is preferred to the ratine, it can easily be hemstitched. The bandings, although they are pretty, are not at all necessary, but just the stitched edges are in every way correct. Among silk suitings, the very thin chiffon moiré is liked and it would be exceedingly beau-

MONTREAL EXPORTS OF WHEAT DOUBLE LAST SEASON'S

Estimated That Quantity Will Be From Sixty to Sixty-five Millions.

Montreal, Oct. 18.—The export of the grain from the port of Montreal for the present season will be from 60,000,000 to 65,000,000 bushels, according to an estimate which has been made at the office of the harbor commissioner. This output will be double or more than double the quantity exported last season, which measured up to rather more than 30,000,000 bushels. Grain received in the harbor elevators to date is estimated at 51,000,000 bushels from the commencement of the season. At the present moment, there are only 2,500,000 bushels in the harbor elevators' elevators, and not more than about 20,000 bushels in the Grand Trunk elevator, so that there is space for the accommodation of another 1,500,000 bushels. That the space will be needed before the end of the season and will, indeed, probably be overtaxed, is evident from official reports which have been received from terminal and ports. There were 20,000,000 bushels in the elevators at Port William on the 9th instant, and the quantity is now almost certainly greater, while the elevators at Tiffin, Goderich, Depot Harbor, Midland, Owen Sound, Port Edward, Port Colborne, and Port McNicoll are packed. Grain is being sent down to Montreal as fast as possible, but just at present there is a shortage of cars available on the Grand Trunk, so that water transit is the only means available, particularly for sending the grain east, but further facilities will be provided just as soon as the difficulty caused by the temporary car shortage can be overcome.

WESTERN BAPTISTS GIVE LIBERALLY TO CHURCH SCHEMES

Subscribe Nearly $32,000 to Missions—19,000 Members in Alberta.

Petersburg, Ont., Oct. 18.—At the morning session of the Baptist convention of Ontario and Quebec, Rev. J. M. Palmer, B.A., LL.D., professor of New Testament in McMaster university, opened the discussion on the New Testament or Protestant doctrine of salvation. Taking up Romans III, 21-26, regarded as the keystone to Protestant doctrine, the speaker said that the essence of St. Paul's teaching was that God through Christ's death had conditioned himself to righteously forgive men on the ground of faith. The whole Pauline thought was that sin was imputed to Christ, through the shedding of his blood. The Protestant doctrine emphasized justification by faith, not by works. The gospels all emphasize the death of Christ rather than the example of Jesus. The baptism of Jesus made it clear that Christ in that action confessed that he had taken the sins of men voluntarily. The ordinance of baptism and the Lord's Supper refer to his death. The gospel agreed with Paul in making the death of Christ propitiatory and atonement.

Dr. W. D. Tigh, B.A., read the fifth annual report of the western mission board, the collecting agency of the Baptist convention of Western Canada. In Manitoba there are 12,000 Baptists, in Saskatchewan 18,000, in Alberta 18,000, and in British Columbia 17,000. Non-English churches were successfully maintained among Germans, Scandinavians, Russians, Rumanians and Hungarians. Colleges are located at Brandon, Calgary and Summerland, B. C.

The churches of western Canada gave liberally this year, $12,500 to India and Bolivia, $1,000 to Grand Teton, and $18,000 to non-English work in home, a total of $21,500 for foreign missions at home and abroad.

The treasurer's report showed receipts of $25,773.83, or which $19,677.83 was from churches and the balance from Sunday schools. T. H. Burmans

Paris, Oct. 18.—Charles Teller, the inventor of the cold storage house and which first enabled American packers to export meat, is dying in a destitute condition at the age of 86. He was injured yesterday. The report was found to be true.

The International Cold Storage Association recently raised $25,000 for the benefit of Mr. Teller. One half of this was subscribed in Argentina, but the money has not yet reached Paris. Mr. Teller refused to accept a pension from the other half, saying he was still able to earn his living and preferred to leave the money to his son. The company where Mr. Teller worked recently failed and the cold storage association wrote him a letter containing an offer of money. No answer was received and the association sent $200 this morning by the doctor who is attending Mr. Teller.

On the other hand, the Paris Mail says the secretary of the cold storage association wrote to Mr. Teller yesterday to the effect that its bookkeeper had embezzled the subscription for his benefit and died. The secretary said he hoped to send some money before the end of the month. The paper adds that Mr. Teller would have died of hunger last week, only for the courage, whose husband is a postman. She withdrew $70 from the savings bank to help him.

Teller's son, who is 22 years of age, is delicate and unable to work regularly. Teller's constant desire is that he will happen to his son after his (the father's) death.

Last February, when he was 85 years old, Mr. Teller, who had been living a life of penury, was decorated with the cross of the legion of honor.

At that time he was found to be living in almost absolute want and a fund was started for his benefit. This is the fund referred to in the above despatch.

Thirty years ago Mr. Teller discovered a method of freezing food by means of two new chemicals, methylether and trimethylamine. He built laboratories and perfected the process. He constructed the ship La Cloche, which took a cargo of frozen meat from Rouen to La Plata.

Catarrh
The accompanying illustration shows how the remedy reaches all parts of the diseased organ, and how it becomes affected by catarrh.

This remedy is composed of herbs, flowers and berries (containing) the active principle of the most powerful diuretic and purgative, and is made into a cigarette tube. The medicated fumes are inhaled to a perfect cure by natural way.

A five day free trial, a small pipe and also an illustrated booklet, together with a letter, will be mailed upon request. Simply write a postal card or letter.

Dr. J. W. BLOESSER,
Spokane, Wash., Toronto

were $23,312.57, leaving a balance of $22,535.

Discussion preceding the adoption of the report brought out the fact that in spite of a statement in the press to the contrary, the Baptists of the west repudiate open church membership.

Vacancies on the board were filled by the appointment of Messrs. A. McNeve, H. McLean, Rev. Dr. W. T. Graham, and Rev. J. K. Webb.

The afternoon session, the report of the senate and board of governors of McMaster university, presented by Prof. W. S. McLeary, M.A., dean in arts, showing total enrollment at McMaster the largest in its history. Of 54 women students, two are in theology. An increased church interest in education was shown by an increase in contribution of $40 percent.

Arrested at Saskatoon—Dan Maguire, a witness in a supreme court case who had been arrested yesterday in Saskatoon by the mounted police and is being brought back to Edmonton today by Detective Wagon. The charge against Maguire is that he committed perjury while giving evidence in that case recently. Superior to that Wronchott received word that he was located at Saskatoon and dispatched a messenger to find that he had not yet returned to Saskatoon.

Winnipeg, Oct. 18—Evidence is lacking that the extreme weakness in the market during the past week has been checked, and that the market is assuming a firmer tone. ### WANT JOHN BURNS TO BE APPOINTED WAR SECRETARY

Man Who is Personally Known to All Soldiers Would Make Good Head.

BURNS' PASSION
IS FOR WALKING
Cabinet Minister Thinks Nothing of Marching Miles on a Long Train.

London, Oct. 18.—Why has not John Burns made secretary for war? It is a question British soldiers often ask. Whether the head of the board of works want delivered he goes to the country to some military encampment and marches a few miles with any detachment of soldiers that happens to be on the move. Consequently the soldiers all know him and would like him at the head of the war department. John Burns is a great walker. Twenty miles a day is relaxation from work for him. He is very much in evidence at all the military manoeuvres, and he frequently joins some band of territorial on the march, and then, after a day, or an afternoon of tramping in the country, takes a train back to London.

Spent his fondness for walking with soldiers, and a passion for attending fires and advising firemen about their work. John Burns is in these days the least conspicuous member of the liberal cabinet. He, who in his former incarnation of labor agitator loved nothing more than to raise his voice in denunciation of the capitalist, seldom gets upon his feet in parliament. Some say that this is because he is out of sympathy with the advanced social reforms of the government, and with the capitalist. He is out of sympathy with his old time "pals" in the ranks of labor. They cannot overlook the fact that he attended court in knee-breeches and suit braided coat. And they never fail to remind him, since he has been drawing a minister's salary of $25,000, that he once declared it was not possible for any man to earn more than $10,000 a year.

PRISON SYSTEM MEANS SLAVERY SAYS REFORMER

Osborne, Voluntary Prisoner, Finds Cruelty and Inefficiency at Auburn Penal Institute

SAYS INDIVIDUALITY IS LOST BY CONFINEMENT

Only favorable Comment is Upon Clean Cells, Good
Food and Sanitation.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Thomas Mott Osborne, chairman of the state committee on prison reform, came out of Auburn prison this afternoon after spending two days in the "dungeons," cells with five other inmates and declared the prison system only another form of slavery.

Osborne, after the alias of Brown, yesterday afternoon was reprimanded in the basket shop for going to the sink without permission and in the discussion he decided to quit work and on refusal to go back to his bench was taken before Principal Cullen, Patterson, who, after warning him that the only alternative to obedience was the "coolie," locked the amateur convict into what he termed on his release to be "the innermost circle of inferno." This morning, worn and weary, he was taken to his cell and at usual chapel hour was allowed to go in with the rest of the prisoners.

Released Talks to Convicts

Osborne, alias Tom Brown, had made arrangements to end his term and when Chaplain Cullen called him out from among the convicts seated in the big hall, there was an ovation never before reported in Auburn prison. Rising from the gray clad men, "Tom Brown" was called to the platform and then delivered a talk to the men, in which he told of some of his experiences and commended men and keepers for the excellent manner in which they had allowed him to work out his plan without obstacle or interference of any sort.

On leaving the prison late this afternoon, Mr. Osborne, although anxious to get to sleep in his own comfortable bed at home, said:

"I am more than ever confirmed in my previous opinion that the prison system is singularly unsuited to the needs of the individual, inefficient, and cruel. In intelligent respect the material well being of convicts is carefully looked after. I found the food unexceptionably good, the cells, while excessively antiquated, are clean, well lighted by night and are satisfactorily ventilated. However, I am told that in cold weather they are often exceedingly damp."

Met Men on Common Ground.
"My adoption of an alias proved to have been most valuable in getting on common ground with the men. Had I used my own name there would undoubtedly have been embarrassment and there would have been far less freedom and intercourse. Incidentally, I may say that the men who can decide in any way a group of state prisoners, will have to be an expert."

"It is not yet time for me to attempt to formulate any detailed criticism of the present system. I must allow the matter to crystallize, having many interesting incidents to arrange themselves in logical order. But one or two things may be well to say while the matter is quite fresh."

"First is that the prison system is absolutely a form of slavery and that all the great truths enunciated by Lincoln and others against negro slavery are just as applicable to prison slavery. It takes from the convict his individual initiative and freedom of action and becomes an irresponsible autocrat. When he returns to the outside world, therefore, he finds he is unable to resume his own initiative and to be the guide of his own destinies. This accounts for so many men who leave prison and return as second offenders. From the first moment that a man arrives in prison he is made to realize that he is no longer an individual human being."

Individually Is Lost.
"He is only very insignificant unit in a community which is undergoing penance for certain crimes and the peace differs only in the matter of duration. The next campaign on my tier of cells may be a forger, burglar, a murderer, a defaulting cashier, he may be a college graduate or the hovey tough, an intelligent Yankee or an ignorant foreigner, yet all clotted alike, fed and housed alike, and each man ceases to be an individual and becomes a moving automaton in a grey suit."

"Attempting to get acquainted with my surroundings at my side and diagonally in back of me on the first day, I was repulsed for disregarding the rules, but once in all the seven days' meals that ate in the mess hall, did I see the men at either side of me move their eyes or faces in my direction."

Spent Week in Inferno.
"I obtained from my night in the punishment cells a glimpse into the lowest circles of inferno and it will be best for me not to attempt to analyze my impressions about it at this time."

Mr. Osborne remarked, he declared, as an extremely cruel rule, that a prisoner who bids a newcomer in prison to write more than one letter a month:

"The warden managed to get three or four hours' sleep during the period when, from three o'clock until dawn, I was to be up and writing."

"I hope to translate this experience into something of great value to the state, to myself and to every citizen of the state of New York. I think that I have seen and done and lived through what I can put myself in the shoes of most of the convicts, and that knowledge will, I hope, bring forth good fruit."

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL.

GENERAL PAU SEES DANGER IN WEAK ARMY

French Warrior Says That New
Military Law Fails to Place
Republic on Equal Footing
With Germany.

Paris, Oct. 18.—M. Clemenceau has increased the belief that the long-expected law, which declares there must be no delay in putting the three years' military law into operation.

General Pau of the supreme council has given an official idea of the republic's attitude. The general, who led an army in 1870, says:

"It is obvious we have to count on equality, even with the three years' military service. Germany now has 800,000 men on a peace footing. The new law will bring us up to 640,000. To these we add our excellent troops in the colonies. Yet even there we shall be in a minority. Turning to reserves, Germany has 370,000 against our 237,000. This leaves us in a minority of 400,000 men."

"It is true the African soldier can be brought to Europe to fight for France. The French Sudan supplies the majority of our black soldiers. Our black army is slowly but surely forming itself. Africa. There are 20,000 Senegalese wearing the French uniform. This body can be increased to 200,000. Employed in Africa and Morocco they have shown admirable qualities."

"The quality of troops depends upon instructions and cohesion. These we have. With the new law there will be no more colonial regiments."

LARGE GATHERING EXPECTED.

All arrangements are practically completed for the lecture of Mayor William J. Hindley, of Spokane, an elective commission government at the Empire auditorium, Friday, October 24. It is said that the audience which will gather to hear this widely recognized platform orator will be one of the largest, most representative and appreciative that has gathered in this city for a long time. Ladies are especially invited by the Civic Government league under whose auspices Mayor Hindley is brought to Edmonton.
